THE NATIONAL PROBATION AND PAROLE ASSOCIATION, with a membership of approximately 30,000 citizens and officials, organized in 1907 and incorporated as a national service agency in 1921, provides services to promote rehabilitation of juvenile and adult offenders. On a community, statewide, and national level, the Association works to develop effective juvenile, family, and criminal courts to improve probation, parole, and detention services and facilities, and to stimulate community programs for the prevention and control of delinquency and crime. The Association works with citizen and professional groups and with judges, probation and parole officers, correctional administrators, and other public officials.

Through its specialized staff, the Association—

- offers direct on-the-spot consultation and makes statewide and local studies of correctional services which are practical guides to action . . .
- develops professional standards and guide materials for use by judges, correctional workers, and laymen . . .
- drafts model legislation and gives legal advisory service to legislative committees, courts, bar associations, correctional agencies, and citizen groups . . .
- conducts an annual conference, organizes training institutes, stimulates professional training for career service in probation and parole, and assists in conducting merit examinations for the selection of professional personnel . . .
- serves as a clearing house for information about correctional work, maintains an extensive library, stimulates research, and provides material and technical data to public information media . . .
- publishes literature for both professional and lay interests . . .

NPPA is a nonprofit citizen organization. Its support comes from voluntary contributions by persons interested in expanding its work and services.
